

from the people who brought you Ringolevio: A Game Played For Keeps comes a New Version:

RINGOLEVIO II: A GAME PLAYED FOR CHICKENS

SATURDAY AUGUST 26 THE PANHANDLE AT FELL AND BAKER STREETS 1PM SHARP!

Needless to say, there are a couple of revisions in the way that Ringolevio will be played in the future. First of all, no hitting is allowed, which is how I broke my wrist. Secondly, if anyone who's not playing even attempts to give you information about an enemy players plans, location, etc. then run away, hit him instead, tell him to shut up or do whatever else you need to do to avoid cheating.

As expected, the women were more than a match for the men at the last game, which was declared a draw. So if you women still think that men have an inherent physical advantage over you, or if you men still believe that contact sports with women don't present much of a challenge, then come participate in your own liberation. (Talk to Shelly Fern if you won't take my word for it.)
A review of the game and rules is presented below.

P O BOX 1134

"There are two sides, each with the same number of players. There are no time limits, no intermissions, no substitutions and no weapons allowed. There are two jails. There is one objective. Each side tries to capture and jail all the members of the other side, while ~~xxx~~ maintaining the freedom of its own teammates. When everyone on one side is captured, the other team wins. To jail or 'den' someone, you must catch him and then restrain him, because he is allowed to resist with all the skill and strength of his mind and body. You cannot ~~xi~~ simply tag him and announce that he is under arrest and expect him to go peacefully. You must get him there. And once he's inside the den you must keep him there because he can escape (if the jailor gets too close to the prisoners they may pull him in, and leave) or be broken out (if one of the prisoners teammates can get into the jail without being caught, he has only to step within its perimeter, shout 'FREE ALL' and there's a jail break). Bribery is also a possibility but cheating is not." From Ringolevio: A Game Played For Keeps by Emmett Grogan.

There you have it. The boundaries will be the fence around Harkness Hospital, inside of which the game will be played. Each jail is 10' X 10' square and will be located out of ~~xi~~ site of each other. The biggest and toughest of each team ~~xxx~~ are the jailors/cops who guard the jails and capture members of the opposing team. These players almost never try to capture each other as the game would then degenerate into an all out war.

Since this is a spectator sport, there will be comfortable viewing stands. All are invited to come and make a party out of it.

The following are mandatory for players:

Wear a pair of tough pants that you don't care about.

Wear some sort of knee protection.

Wear soft running shoes such as Adidas, sneakers, etc.

A ~~xxxx~~ safety strap for glasses or a case.

Since there will be no breaks, arrange what you intend to do about food ahead of time.

Anyone can play, but non-Suicide Club members must be cleared through me before the day of the game.

READ THE FIRST 37 PAGES OF THE BOOK.

The following are mandatory for spectators:

Bring a gourmet hors d'oeuvre for five.

Bring a pillow to sit on.

Bring a flashlight with fresh batteries.

Bring something non-alcoholic to drink.
